MAAC is a nonprofit 501(C)(3) organization that provides academic support, wellness programs, and community connections for high school students of color. All programs are based on a mindful approach to learning, which enables students to examine their responses to information.

FOR DECADES, STUDENTS OF COLOR, especially African American students in the United States, have lagged behind their white peers in academic achievement. According to the Achievement Gap Recommendations Report, the Montclair Public Schools have distinct and unacceptable paths of learning, reaching a crescendo of inequality at the most critical moment in a young person's life—high school graduation. The South Orange/Maplewood School District is among the New Jersey school districts with the highest racial disparities in tracking and student discipline. There is a fierce sense of urgency to address these issues.
